CELEBRATING WOMEN IN JAPAN

Rachel Leng is a Private Equity Associate at a Japanese fund investing in healthcare and tech SMEs and COO/Co-Founder of a Tokyo-based media production company. She is also a global speaker, writer, former Miss Singapore titleholder, and an East Asia specialist.

What do you think Japanese companies and/or government needs to do to help women in Japan?

The government and companies in Japan need to have more initiatives that put women at the forefront, and also actively increase awareness of how these programs can support women to succeed.

What advice do you have for the next generation of women in Japan?

Never stop learning. Do not be afraid to search for new challenges as the journey will certainly lead to more opportunities.
